You may need a substance abuse assessment and treatment if any of the following are true for you:

- You need increasing amounts of alcohol and drugs to get the desired effects
- You have tried to cut down or quit on your own and could not
- Much of your time is spent obtaining or using substances and recovering from the effects of using
- You have given up commitments, obligations, and usual activities in order to use or drink
- Your using or drinking is causing problems with your relationships or job
- You have withdrawal symptoms when you try to stop using or drinking
